

Living with pain from knee osteoarthritis can be painful and discouraging.

Now Enrolling!

A clinical trial testing a medication designed to reduce swelling due to knee osteoarthritis.

How do I know if I qualify to participate?

- You must be diagnosed with knee osteoarthritis by a physician.
- You are at least 40 years old but not older than 70.

Once you start the trial, the clinical trial physician will complete additional tests such as bloodwork and a knee ultrasound to further determine if you can participate in this trial.

What will I have to do?

Once you meet all the criteria for the trial, you will receive an injection which may contain the treatment medication or may contain a placebo (no active medication). After receiving the injection, you will come in for scheduled evaluations by the clinical trial physician and staff. There are a total of 11 visits in the trial and some of the visits will be over the phone.
