Thank you for being part of the DRAGON Study!

Dear Junior Researcher,
Thank you for joining the DRAGON study for kids with asthma!
You and 145 other kids are doing something very important. You're helping doctors who are trying to learn more about the study drug and if it can help kids with asthma.
Everyone at the doctor's office is here to help. Please let us know if you need anything!

Here's a drawing of your respiratory system.

Your respiratory system is the part of your body that helps you breathe.

People who have asthma sometimes have trouble breathing. Asthma can make a person's airways get smaller, making it harder for air to get in and out of the lungs.

Can you trace the path that air takes when you take a breath? With a different colored pencil or crayon, show what happens when you breathe out.
